

ALLIES GAIN A STRATEGIC TURK POINT

LONDON IS CHEERED BY LATEST REPORT OF SIR IAN HAMILTON IN REGARD TO DARDANELLES.

GRODNO FORTS TAKEN

German Army in Possession of Outer Line of Fortifications According to Berlin—Slavs Claim New Successes.

London, Sept. 2.—The British public has been greatly cheered by the version of the recent heavy fighting at the Dardanelles contained in the official report received last night from General Sir Ian Hamilton, the British commander in chief. This report has been awaited eagerly in view of the reports of Constantinople that the allies had been repulsed with heavy losses.

Capture Strategic Point. Sir Ian claims that his forces operating on the northern section of the line captured an important tactical point commanding the Buzia Anafarta valley to the east and north as well as making appreciable gains along the Australasian front.

If the British colonials now dominate Anafarta, their guns should have a clear field to fire upon one of the main Turkish supply roads leading toward Achi Baba. The Turks, however, have an alternative line of communication with this part of their front. Constantinople has admitted no advance on the part of the allies.

Russ Claim Success. The Russians are developing unexpected strength in the north, where they state they are holding Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, but have gained local success near Vilna. Various changes have been made in the Russian command, the most important being the return of General Ruzsky to the leadership of the northern army.

Berlin wireless reports, which usually are a day or two in advance of the Petrograd official communication, announce a reversal in the Galician situation as a result of a victorious assault on the Russians north of Zborov. Take Forts at Grodno.

Berlin, Sept. 2.—German forces attacking the Russian fortress of Grodno have taken the fort, the Germans state. It was officially announced by German army headquarters.

CHINESE REPUBLIC IS TOTTERING NOW

Fact That Vice President Resigns Taken as Meaning China Will Return to Monarchical Form of Government.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Shanghai, China, Sept. 2.—Li Yuan Heng has resigned as vice president of the Chinese republic. The interpretation placed upon his act is that it is preparatory to the establishment of a monarchy, which is popularly regarded as virtually certain.

A dispatch from Peking last night said the failure of Li Yuan Heng, who has been virtually a prisoner in the palace grounds for many months, to attend yesterday's session of advisory council, had been made the basis of a sensational story published by a Peking newspaper. Li Yuan Heng was reported in Peking to have requested from President Yuan Shi Kai permission to depart from the capital city. He is said to have informed the president that he would not oppose the re-establishment of a monarchy, but would not subscribe his name to a petition favoring the project.

ANOTHER WAR LOAN SOUGHT BY GERMANY

Formal Call for Subscriptions Is Made.—Five Per Cent on Money.—Food Supply Good.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Sept. 2.—The manager of the Reich bank has issued a formal call for subscription to the new war loan. The newspapers point out editorially that great advantages are offered to investors who are able to obtain their money in the form of imperial bonds, paying 5 per cent.

Food in Plenty. In accordance with recent relaxation of regulations concerning food supplies, the municipal council of Berlin has decreed that hereafter pure wheat may be used in baking wheat bread and up to thirty per cent of wheat in rye bread. The supply of wheat is said to be abundant.

WANT JOB STROLLING ALONG THE BOTTOM OF LAKE AT MILWAUKEE?

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2.—Anyone desiring to take a pleasant stroll along the bottom of Lake Michigan will be given the opportunity, if he communicates with Commissioner of Public Works, F. G. Simmons, of this city. It will even be paid for if he goes over a prescribed half mile route. The commissioner wants to know if the lake bed is level enough to support water mains. Some local divers are expected to do the job.

GREEN BAY VICTOR IN SUIT ON PLANT

Judge of Circuit Court Dismisses Bondholders' Action Against City of Green Bay.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Green Bay, Sept. 2.—The decision of Judge Fowler of the circuit court of Fond du Lac county in the Kaukauna Gas, Electric Light & Power Company was received here today and is a complete victory for the city, as the court in its decision sustains all of the contentions of the city and dismisses the action.

Bondholders sought to foreclose a mortgage of $75,000 on the plant after the city paid the purchase price to the Citizens Savings & Trust Company, Milwaukee, trustees for the bondholders, and which later failed. The contention of the city that when it paid the amount of the mortgage to the bondholders, the lien on the mortgage was transferred from the plant to the fund, was upheld.

GERMANS IN REPORT ABOUT NAVAL BATTLE

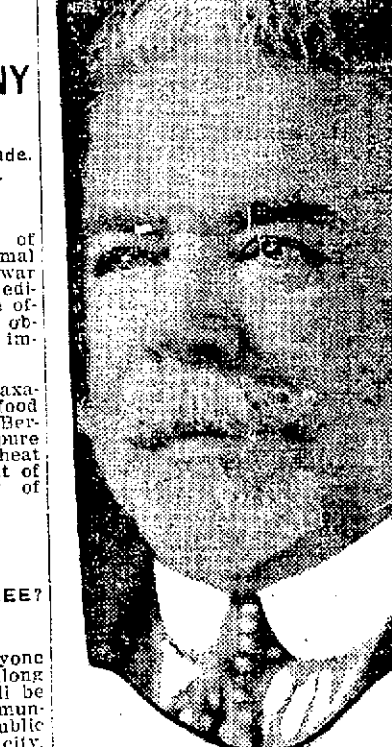

German War Office States Two British Ships Sunk By Submarines on Aug. 17th Off Ireland.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Sept. 2.—The German admiralty made public today further details of the naval engagement on August 17 off the Irish coast, in which a small British steamer and British destroyer are said to have been sunk by German torpedo boats. The statement says: "The British forces were completely surprised by the attack of German torpedo boats. A cruiser belonging to the Aurora craft sunk within four minutes. The destroyer went down immediately on being hit with a torpedo."

LANSING CONFERS WITH GUATEMALAN

Senor Juan Ortega.

Senor Juan Ortega, Guatemalan minister to Mexico, who was handed his passports by General Carranza and requested to leave Mexico because of his alleged sympathy with the enemies of the "first chief," is a recent arrival in Washington. A few days ago he took part in a conference at the state department between several of the Pan-American diplomats and Secretary Lansing.

POPE SENDS PEACE NOTE BY GIBBONS

BENEDICT'S REPRESENTATIVE CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT WILSON ON CHANCES OF ENDING WAR.

CARDINAL IS PLEASED

Appears Most Gratified With Results of Half Hour's Audience and Holds a Conference With Secretary Lansing.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Sept. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons today presented to President Wilson a message from Pope Benedict regarding peace in Europe. Later he saw Secretary Lansing on the same subject.

After his conference at the White House the cardinal announced he had discussed possibilities of peace with the president. He said he had conveyed a message from the Pope on the question, but could not reveal its exact contents at this time.

Favors Peace Overture. While the cardinal would not go into detail regarding the message from the Pope it was indicated it was in the nature of a suggestion that neutral powers join with the vatican in making further efforts to restore peace. The cardinal said the plan in mind was along the general line of recent public discussion of the question in newspapers.

Cardinal Gibbons was with the president nearly half an hour. He was accompanied by Monsignor William T. Russell, rector of St. Patrick's Catholic church here.

Cardinal Much Pleased. In answer to inquiries, the cardinal said his face beamed with smiles, greeted inquirers and without being questioned said he had discussed peace with the president.

"Our talk was highly satisfactory, and I am very much pleased with my reception from the president," said the cardinal. "We talked over the question, but I cannot reveal the details of our conversation at this time. Probably more will be made public in the near future."

In answer to inquiries, the cardinal said he had brought to the president a message from the Pope. He added that he wanted to talk with Secretary Lansing on peace and go over the details of the message taken up with President Wilson. The cardinal seemed pleased with his interview, and his manner suggested he was hopeful.

Basis for Peace Talk. It was indicated that basis for his belief was a suggestion that it might be possible to get an agreement between Germany and Great Britain, for guaranteeing the freedom of the seas, and in that way to start a discussion of peace terms. The cardinal indicated broadly that he believed negotiations soon would be under way to end the war. He indicated that further developments might become known soon.

After leaving the White House, the cardinal dismissed the automobile in which he had ridden to see the president, and walked to the state department to see Secretary Lansing.

After the visit of the cardinal, it was announced at the White House that the president would make no comment on the conference at this time.

At the embassies of the allies, the cardinal's visit to the White House was viewed with lively interest, but none of the officials there expressed any hope for immediate outcome of the peace talk. Officials in the allies' headquarters reiterated their previous sentiments that their home governments were not seeking peace other than on the terms for which their armed forces are contending.

Discuss Mexican Situation. Later it was revealed the cardinal incidentally discussed the Mexican question generally, with President Wilson and expressed hope that peace would be restored there. After his conference with Secretary Lansing the cardinal declared he had nothing to say further. After leaving the state department, the cardinal called on the papal delegates.

ARREST JITNEY MAN UNDER RECENT LAW

Green Bay Operator Had No License and Is Held Under State Statute.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Green Bay, Sept. 2.—The first arrest of a jitney operator, under the new state motor law, was made here today. John Roffers was charged with carrying passengers in his motor vehicle without having the necessary license and without furnishing an indemnity bond. Roffers was operating between the pier and county fair grounds when complaint was made.

AVIATOR AND TROOPS CHASE THE MEXICANS

Band of Greasers Who Set Fire to Tressle Bridge Hard Pressed by U. S. Soldiers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 2.—United States troops today were trailing a band of Mexican raiders who set fire to and partly burned a railroad tressle fourteen miles north of Brownsville, shortly after midnight. Special troop trains from Brownsville, Harlingen and San Benito were hurried to the scene about two this morning. Reports at ten o'clock said the Mexicans had not been overtaken.

A party of Americans traveling from Brownsville to San Benito in an automobile who passed the tressle a short while before it was set on fire, reported they had been fired upon by a band of between twenty-five and thirty Mexicans.

Cavalry and infantry are being spread out rapidly from Fort Brown in an effort to surround the Mexicans who set fire to the railroad tressle four miles north of here after midnight this morning and who have been chased by cavalry since two o'clock.

Aviation Lieutenant R. C. Morrow has been ordered to ascend an airplane and locate the band and direct the soldiers to them. American troops are reported closing in on the Mexicans from every direction.

ITALY PRISONS MEN USING CARRIER BIRDS

Austrian Captain and Albanians of His Crew Found Guilty of Communication With Austria.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Bari, Italy, Sept. 2.—Eight Albanians were sentenced to long terms in prison today for having communicated with Austria by carrier pigeons. The men involved are Captain Mustapha, captain of a bark, who was sentenced to twenty years, and seven members of his crew condemned from five to ten years each.

When the vessel was searched by Italian authorities, there were found a large number of empty petroleum cans and a considerable sum of gold. It was alleged that the money had been received from Austria in payment for contraband and for intelligence forwarded by carrier pigeons.

A. R., which is to be held in Washington, September 27 to October 3. The two leading figures at the encampment will be David J. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., and General Nelson A. Miles, who will be grand marshal of the marching pageant.

WOMAN HELD FOR PLOT TO KIL SPEASE

WIFE OF DR. MOHR, WEALTHY NEWPORT PHYSICIAN, CHARGED WITH INCITING HIS MURDER.

ACCUSED BY NEGROES

Men Whom It Is Alleged Mrs. Mohr Hired to Do Slaying, Involve Her in Conspiracy in Their Confessions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Providence, R. I., Sept. 2.—Accused by her alleged accomplices—three negroes—Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr today was held without bail on the charge of having incited the murder of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, a wealthy and well known physician of this city and Newport. The arraignment was at Warren.

The police made public a letter addressed to George Rooke, a brother-in-law of Miss Burges, Dr. Mohr's housekeeper, and bearing the signature of Mrs. Mohr. Rooke said he received the letter a short time ago. It reads:

"Dear Mr. Rooke: Just a line to tell you to tell your sister if she desires to go into my Newport home, she will never come out alive. I am giving her a fair warning. No matter what the outcome may be, I will see her through. I was told about her buying linen at a department store for Dr. Mohr, and I hope you will try to straighten this matter out. I know you cannot stop her going out to dinner with him, but she will have a sad ending if she keeps on against me. My home is being watched, and if I should leave Newport this summer, my home will be watched just the same, and should I get word I will come right up. The world is with me in my sorrow. I am heartbroken. Respectfully, ELIZABETH T. MOHR."

Dr. and Mrs. Mohr were married twenty years ago. Recently Mrs. Mohr instituted separation proceedings and Dr. Mohr brought a counter suit. After suit was entered Mrs. Mohr said she did not ask for a divorce, but a separation might be removed sometime and a reconciliation would be effected.

Negroes in Custody. Providence, R. I., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, wife of Dr. Franklin Mohr, who was fatally shot while on an automobile trip from this city to Newport on Tuesday night, was charged today with three negroes had signed a written confession saying that Mrs. Mohr had hired them to kill the doctor. The negroes are charged with the shooting, Cecil Brown, formerly employed as a porter by Dr. Mohr, half brother of Brown. No specific charge has been brought against Mrs. Mohr, who vehemently denied the accusation, which she characterized as absurd.

Conflict in Stories. Heals has been detained by the police since the shooting, as his account of the affair differed from that given by Miss Emily G. Burger, the doctor's assistant, who was in the automobile and was also wounded.

Brown was taken into custody last night, after Heals had told the police he and the hostler had counted to rob Dr. Mohr on the night of the shooting. The authorities did not believe the story of the negroes, and Brown was subjected to a searching examination during which, the police say, he broke down and admitted he was concerned in the shooting and was willing to offer him $2,000 to kill her husband.

Heals and Spellman, questioned separately, corroborated Brown's story and the arrest of Mrs. Mohr, who had been at first denied she had any connection with the affair. He said he passed over the Nayatt road, where the shooting occurred, on a motorcycle with Heals, and his way to wait a friend at Riverside.

Detectives who were sent to Riverside to investigate the story, returned with Spellman in custody. Spellman was not asked to deny Dr. Mohr and when Brown heard of Spellman's declaration he made a detailed confession.

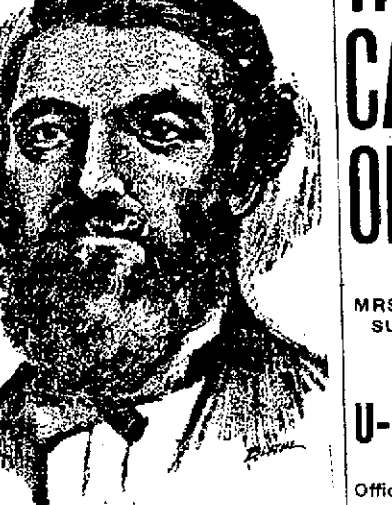

Wanted Husband Killed. According to Brown's story, as given out by the police, Mrs. Mohr proposed several weeks ago that he kill Dr. Mohr, promising to pay him $5,000 one day after the killing. He said he asked Spellman to help him out, and brought his half brother up to talk the matter over with Mrs. Mohr. Heals was present at this interview.

The arrangements for the shooting were carried out in detail according to the confession. At a designated spot on the Nayatt road Heals stalled the engine of the automobile and Brown and Spellman, who had come up on a motorcycle, crept through the bushes and fired at the occupants of the car. Brown said he shot Dr. Mohr and Spellman wounded Miss Burges.

After Spellman and Heals had corroborated Brown's story, two police detectives went to Mrs. Mohr's house and brought her to police headquarters, where later she finally made a placid denial of the negroes' charges, and said their confession was "absurd."

Immediately after her arrest she sent for her attorney, Arthur Cushing. No specific charge was preferred against her as the murder was committed in Bristol county, which is out of the jurisdiction of the Providence county court. It was stated she would be arraigned on charges of inciting to murder. The charge against Brown was murder of Dr. Mohr, that against Heals will be accessory to the murder.

HONOR MEMORY OF PETROLEUM FINDER

Edwin L. Drake.

The people of western Pennsylvania have just finished celebrating the fifty-sixth anniversary of the discovery of petroleum by Edwin L. Drake, who operated near Oil City, Pa., and bored the first oil well in 1859. Although Drake's discovery added millions to the wealth of the state, he died in poverty. The National Petroleum Association has announced its intention to keep alive the name of Drake and do him honor.

THREE MEET DEATH IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Two of a Party of Eight Young People Are Killed at Rochester, N. Y.—Peshigo Barber Killed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 2.—A large automobile containing a party of eight young people from Leroy and Pavilion, left the road after leaving the corner east of Munford, about midnight last night, crashed through a fence and was wrecked against a tree. Two of the occupants were instantly killed, and one seriously injured. The killed are George G. Books, Pavilion, and Miss Mary Luttrill, Leroy. Miss Hussman, Miss Anna Cullen, Miss Allshecker, Leroy; Glen Van Duzer, Kennerly; and Harold Kenzie, Pavilion, were injured. Miss Hussman's condition is regarded serious. The party was returning from a ride. The car skidded when Cook, who was driving, attempted to take the curve at a high rate of speed.

Smith of the Marinette county asylum, speeding in Peshigo at an early hour this morning, was killed and Smith severely injured. The automobile left the road and turned on its side when Smith lost control.

WANT PROHIBITION IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Big Temperance Campaign Is Now Being Inaugurated in British Colony.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] St. Johns, N. F., Sept. 2.—Prohibition today becomes the leading political issue in the colony. Advocates for and against temperance completed plans for a campaign of speech making which will terminate in November, when the people will vote on a law referred to them. The law for the colony is completely surrounded by water, importation of liquor under prohibition would be the extreme difficulty. Advocates of the prohibition movement therefore would give the world the most complete demonstration of working of prohibition yet known. To become a law the prohibition act must have the approval of forty per cent of the electorate.

ENGLISH SHIP LINES WILL STOP AT PORTS OF AFRICAN COLONY

London, Sept. 2.—Two lines of English steamships are preparing to have their vessels call at the ports of the conquered German territory in German Southwest Africa. British steamship lines have not been allowed to call at the ports of Swakopmund and Luderitz Bay, although German ships were allowed free access to the British ports on the African coast. It is expected that direct railway communication between the port of Swakopmund and Rhodesia will be established shortly.

TALKS WITH CABIN MATE OF DR. WOODS

MRS. WOODS MEETS THIRTY-FIVE SURVIVORS OF ARABIC WHO LAND IN NEW YORK.

U-BOAT'S CREW TAKEN

Officer of Adriatic Declares Submarine Which Sank Arabic Was Caught in Net and Its Crew Made Prisoners.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Sept. 2.—Thirty-five survivors of the steamer Arabic arrived here today on the American liner St. Paul from Liverpool.

Dr. Aubrey Gaultier, who was cabin mate of Dr. Edmund F. Woods of Janesville, Wis., one of the Americans lost, was among the arrivals. He was met at the pier by Dr. Wood's wife, who sought a first-hand story of her husband's last hour.

All of the survivors repeated the statement they made after being rescued.

U-Boat's Crew Captured. An officer of the White Star liner Adriatic, which arrived from Liverpool today, declared the German submarine which sank the Arabic had been caught in a steel net and the U-boat's crew were now prisoners in England. He added that within the past sixty days the British have captured no less than fifty German submarines.

The officer said he could not, for obvious reasons, disclose the place of capture, or detail the circumstances. He said, however, that the U-boat was one of the latest and largest type in the German navy and the craft carried the double crew. He understood that the Germans now manned all of the large submarines with an auxiliary crew for training purposes.

Expect Amicable Settlement. With both oral and written assurances from the German government, transmitted through Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, to the state department regarding Germany's submarine policy, officials here are hopeful that the Washington government today looked hopefully forward for ultimate and satisfactory settlement of the whole submarine problem.

Officials could not be known as the German submarines without warning and without safety of lives of non-combatants, provided the latter were not used for offensive resistance. Count Von Bernstorff's letter contained the information that the policy of Germany had been decided upon before the sinking of the Arabic. Officials here are gratified with the German announcement as it is believed the end of the crisis in relations between the two governments.

Attitude in London. London, Sept. 2.—That Great Britain cannot make a concessionary party to a settlement of the submarine question which puts a liner and its passengers into a class apart from a merchantman and its crew, is the general attitude of the evening newspapers on the note of Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, to Secretary of State Lansing in Washington.

PROMOTE INTERURBAN LINE FOR GREEN BAY

Milwaukee Man Behind Company to Operate Line From Sheboygan—$50,000 Capital.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Green Bay, Sept. 2.—A. C. Lingelbach of Milwaukee is promoting an interurban railway line between Green Bay and Sheboygan, and announced that a company to be known as the Green Bay and Eastern Railway company will be organized with a capital of $50,000. New territory will be opened up by the proposed line, as the route is through East Wrights town, Kellersville, Francis Creek, Manitowish and thence to Sheboygan. The road will cost between $20,000 and $25,000 per mile to be built. It is proposed to raise an initial sum in the community adjacent to the route sufficient to create an equity which can be bonded. The territory along the route is a rich farming district with several good sized towns included.

REV. WILLIAMS MAY
AGAIN BE RETURNED TO PASTORATE HERE

Quarterly Conference Places Special Emphasis on Its Invitation.—Appointments Due Sept. Thirtieth.

At the last quarterly meeting at the Carnegie E. church a most cordial invitation was extended to the minister, Reverend T. D. Williams, to return to the church as its pastor for the succeeding year. Owing to the fact that the emphasis was placed upon the invitation by the conference and the district superintendent, it is thought probably that Mr. Williams will continue in Janesville and will be reappointed at the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist church which opens its sessions at Racine on Tuesday, September 7th, and continues until September 8th, on which date the appointments will be announced.

Reverend Williams will attend the sessions of the conference and will represent the addresses of welcome on Tuesday evening. T. E. Bennison is the lay delegate from the Janesville church.

There will be two business matters of importance which will be brought before the Racine conference. One will be the question of consolidating the two conferences of Wisconsin and the other will be the election of delegates to the general conference of the church which will be held next May at Saratoga Springs, New York. Four ministerial and four lay delegates are to be chosen.

Bishop Wilson of New York will be the presiding officer at the conference and will give several addresses, one on the evening of the conference day and another at the laymen's convention Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11. Bishop Wilson is at present conducting the West Wisconsin conference which is in session at Eau Claire, Wis. Theodore S. Henderson of Nebraska will be one of the prominent speakers at the conference and will give addresses on Thursday afternoon and evening at the Wisconsin conference of Janesville and President Samuel of Lawrence College, Appleton, will give the addresses at the anniversary of the board of education and the new college on Sunday evening, Sept. 12.

QUICK ACTION SAVES
LOSS OF SCARF STUD

Clever Thief Attempts to Steal Diamond Button From Dr. Buckmaster, Who Suspects Old Trick.

A clever thief, probably making his way to the Jefferson fair this week, failed in his attempt yesterday to steal a valuable diamond stud from Dr. Buckmaster, owing to the quick action of the doctor, who suspected the old methods used by the robber.

Dr. Buckmaster had gone to the north train for Chicago over the Northwestern road with his daughter, Miss Ada, who was leaving for Roswell, New Mexico. He boarded the train at 10:30 a. m. and was sitting in the first-class car, well dressed, when he was approached by a man at the same time, one forcing his way ahead of the doctor, while the other remained behind, a crowd was looking for seats, and in the confusion the man in front of Dr. Buckmaster said, "I don't believe I'm on the right train."

Dr. Buckmaster, anxious to get his daughter seated and get off the car, answered the man, saying, "Well, get out of the way and let the people pass." To this answer the thief said "Sure," and started to leave.

The last word of the thief aroused the doctor's curiosity and he put his hand to his scarf where the stud was, and in so doing he hit the thief's hand, the stud dropping into his hand. The thief is described as having a raincoat on his left arm and using his right hand under the coat to carry out his scheme.

Dr. Buckmaster hastened out of the car, but could not locate the two men, who had disappeared in the crowd.

The attempt to obtain the diamond was one of the boldest and cleverest undertakings in this city in this branch of crime, in some time. The stud was securely fastened to a large screw inserted in the necktie, yet the thief managed to get it without attracting the immediate attention of the physician. The police here heard last night that a purse had been taken from a passenger on the train from Jefferson which arrived in Janesville just before the Chicago train, which the thieves boarded. It is probable that the same two men who took the stud of the purse, Dr. Buckmaster valued his pin at over two hundred dollars.

LABOR DAY PLANS
AT THE GOLF CLUB
MOST ELABORATE

Bridge, Club Supper, Play and Dancing to Go to Make Up Entertainment Program.

Labor Day at the Janesville Golf club promises to have an exceptionally attractive program for the members and their invited guests. Aside from the regular golf games, the arrangements for which are not yet completed, it promises to be a full day for the devotees to bridge and dancing.

Mrs. Frank Blodgett and Mrs. Frank Jackson have charge of the social side of the entertainment and plan for a bridge game in the afternoon, starting at three, for elaborate prizes. Then comes the club supper with a special menu at six o'clock sharp. Place reserved in advanced will be served first and an earnest request is made that the steward be notified as early as possible so as to provide for many guests.

At eight in the evening comes a play, "The Lamentable Tragedy of Julius Caesar," staged under the direction of Miss Katherine Jeffris. It is scheduled to start at eight and land knows when it will end, although the evening's program calls for dancing from nine until eleven with Miss McClellan at the piano, drum accompaniment.

In presenting the play, the ladies in charge desire to call attention to the fact that the costumes and the cast are of exceptional ability. The tragedy is most successfully staged in true theatrical style, the properties have all been carefully selected to fit the play and the various scenes in the four acts have been prepared with a view to historical accuracy.

As it is a musical production, the play is being given by the Janesville Musical Society, which is in session at the Janesville High school. The society has been carefully selected and the various scenes in the four acts have been prepared with a view to historical accuracy.

Prominent in the cast will be Miss Katherine Jeffris, Miss Helen Jeffris and many others. The costumes and scenic effects have all been obtained for the evening at considerable trouble and expense and it is one of the most ambitious home talent productions that have been attempted in many years.

It is expected that the day's program will attract a large number of members, as it is a home talent production and is being made to accommodate all who signify their intention of being present at the supper and evening entertainment.

Hoof and Mouth Disease Outbreak at First Favored Would Keep Wisconsin From Exhibiting.

Rock county stock breeders contemplating exhibiting their cattle at the Panama-Pacific exposition will be pleased to learn that the state veterinarian has assured that no new regulations will be enacted running against the exhibitors, who are exhibiting cattle at Chicago, because of the outbreak of the hoof and mouth disease in Wisconsin last winter.

Quite a representation of stockmen of this county are to ship their cattle to the exposition.

It was reported here some time ago that there was opposition to the Wisconsin farmers shipping cattle to the exposition, because of the outbreak in Wisconsin. It was said that in case some of the cattlemen, who exhibited cattle at Chicago, attempted to exhibit at San Francisco, next regulations would be adopted by the state.

"I wish to advise that there will be no possibility of such regulations being enacted, and that the cattlemen of this county may exhibit their cattle at the exposition in the state of Wisconsin," writes State Veterinarian Charles Keane of California, in a letter received by the secretary of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association.

FINISH REMODELING OF COUNTY OFFICES

New Steel Desks and Filing Cases Installed for County Clerk and County Treasurer.

Work of remodeling the county clerk's office, which was completed with the county clerk and the county treasurer has been completed and the new office furniture, including steel desks and filing cases, has been installed. The clerk's office has been entirely redecorated and a hardwood floor has been laid.

Alterations and repairs are also being contemplated for the office of the county clerk, where a new floor will be laid and the walls will be redecorated, and the office of Judge Field which will probably be redecorated and the office of the county clerk will have the office which has been vacated by County Treasurer Livermore.

LOCAL TENNIS PLAYERS
WIN AT LAKE GENEVA

In the tennis match at Lake Geneva yesterday between four local players and four from Geneva, the results were as follows:

In the singles Carpenter defeated Dr. Halsey, 6-2, 6-1; Jackson defeated Atkinson, 6-3, 6-1; Lovejoy defeated Burke, 6-4, 6-1; and Taylor defeated Atkinson and Van de Bogert 6-3, 6-4.

The courts were new and very rough, a large tree standing at the corner of one of the courts. The local players were royally entertained and speak in the highest terms of the Geneva boys.

Wednesday's Market.
Chicago, Sept. 2.—Native beef cattle advanced 10@20c yesterday and hogs averaged a little higher, while lambs declined 10@15c.

New York shippers and the city butchers paid as high as $10.35 for fancy beefs for kosher trade.

Cattle top yesterday was highest since August 11, when Armour paid $10.50, the high point of the year.

Fancy 230-lb. butchers' hogs sold yesterday at $8.65, common 400-lb. packers at $6.10 and 64-lb. roasting pigs at $8.25.

Actual receipts at Chicago stock yards in August: Cattle, 200,025; hogs, 445,255; and sheep, 301,533, being a record for any month this year.

The smallest hog run since last November and smallest August sheep total since 1886.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.00, ending $6.88 Tuesday, $7.10 a week ago, $9.26 a year ago, $7.86 two years ago and $8.35 three years ago.

Cattle Summary Higher.
Plenty of beef cattle sold 35@40c above last week's low time yesterday, with bulk at $9@9.30. Butchers' stock advanced some and veal calves sold 25@50c higher than Monday.

Butlers stood 30c higher than a week ago at $9.30. Quotations:

Choice to fancy steers... $8.90@10.35
Poor to good steers... 7.00@8.50

WIFE DESERTER GETS
TERM OF ONE YEAR

Italian Sentenced to Green Bay Reformatory and Then Is Paroled to State Board.

The case of Frank Gulick was at last settled in the municipal court this morning, when Judge H. L. Maxfield sentenced the Italian to one year in the Green Bay reformatory and then suspended the sentence, placing Gulick under the state board of control for the term. Under this agreement Gulick is to be paroled out to work, probably not in Rock county, and his entire wages run to the support of his wife and small daughter Kittie.

Attorney E. H. Peterson appeared for the defendant and entered a plea of guilty for Gulick to the charge of wife desertion. Then followed arguments as to the best method of disposing of the case to punish Gulick for twice running away and yet to provide for the proper support of his family. Gulick is only 25 years of age and therefore too young for the state prison at Waupun. If he was sent to the penitentiary the wife and child would suffer, so the court struck a happy medium by suspending the reformatory sentence and allowing that he be paroled out to work. Frank Palmer, section foreman, declared that he would not be responsible for the appearance of Gulick and how much he worked, because this plan last time failed.

Superintendent of Poor Asa Anderson plans to place the mother and her child with a family in this city where they went before, until the negligent husband can get on his feet and return to him, even though he had no work.

TIGERS HAVE JINX ON THE WHITE SOX

Batting Rally Ties Score in Eighth but the Tigers Have Just Enough Bingles Left to Win.

Detroit, Sept. 2.—Today will see the last of the White Sox in Detroit and because of the two beatings that have been given them in as many games, the Chicago club are not sorry to escape from Denning's men. Yesterday the Sox made a game fight to beat Cobb and the bunch of sluggers here and failed, losing by the score of 3 to 4. Ten hits apiece were gained by the teams but the Sox played listlessly as if under a spell.

Jim Scott started the game and was opposed by Coveleskie. Detroit pounded home two runs in the first, treating Scott rather roughly and but for home plate throws by Weaver and Jackson the Tigers might have doubled that count. Scott came back and stuck until the fourth and then Benz failed the ball to the white horse hit Coveleskie rather freely in the early innings but their hits did not get them anywhere. In the eighth an error started the trouble for the Tigers. Benz landed on first, Murphy tripped and J. Collins singled. Eddie Collins got the lever and hit and the score was tied when Eddie scored on a fly.

Rome put the Sox under the gun for the Sox when he tripped against the fence and Weaver fumbled long enough to let the run score. The Tigers have beaten the Sox in nine games out of ten at the Detroit grounds this year.

Gus Barnstorming.
Chicago, Sept. 2.—The Cubs are on a barnstorming trip at Greenvale, Pa., and yesterday won from the Greenvale team by a score of 11 to 3. Zabel hurled the game. They play there again today.

May Sell Baker.
Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—The sale of Franklyn Baker, home running, former third baseman with the Athletics, is expected to be announced some time today, providing Connie Mack agrees to purchase the player. The sale is expected to be to the New York Yankees and the price reported is $15,000.

Thorpe Comes Back.
New York, Sept. 2.—Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, came back to the Giants yesterday and whaled out three hits and added in the Giants beating Philadelphia in a four run rally, the final score being 8 to 2. Thorpe had been fanned out to Harrisburg.

Eraves Are Beaten.
Boston, Sept. 2.—Tony held the Braves to one hit yesterday and Cincinnati won 6 to 0. Snodgrass was the only Brave to hit safely off the Red pitcher.

Wisconsin Football Team Not to Suffer Greatly Through Ineligible Players This Year.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 2.—Reports that the University of Wisconsin 1915 football team will suffer severely through lack of inexperienced players who are ineligible, are denied by Earl S. Driver, assistant to Coach Juneau. Only four positions were vacated by graduation. Driver emphatically denied that Artie Mucks, Captain Stavrum, Kelley, Kreuz, Byers and Galvin would be ineligible.

"Reports like these, which do more to darken Wisconsin's chances for a winning team than anything else I know of, have been in evidence for the past few days," said Coach Driver. "We would have some green material, but the same conditions prevail in every other university in the conference. Minnesota's team last year was mostly of sophomores, and they did very nicely. We are in school, but all of the other eleven will have four or five positions to fill. The only man we are certain to lose is Al M. Brown of St. Louis, a sophomore, who starred on the freshman team in scrimmages against the varsity last fall. He will not be able to play on account of a three months' illness, from which he is just recovering.

That Artie Mucks, star guard, who played a sensational game for Wisconsin last year, his first season, would not play football this year, in order to save himself for track competition, was also denied. Mucks is a valuable man to be kept on the sidelines. The only Wisconsin men who will be missing are Kennedy, center; Keeler, guard; Bellows, quarterback; and Taylor, fullback.

The report that La Crosse, star end, is ineligible, is also denied.

Reports that Louis Kreuz, Menominee, Mich., star fullback, would not return to school, and that Malcolm Garvin, Ashland, fullback, though in school, would not be out for football, are also discounted.

OLD WHITE SOX TEAM TO PLAY THE RED SOX.

It will be the old White Sox team, champions in their class of the several years ago, versus the Janesville Red Sox, an undefeated team, for title honors Sunday. The White Sox will be repaired in several of the old places with Sullivan, Stickney, Stewart as infielders. Pitcher Kakuska, who is yet to receive a defeat, will oppose them.

PENNANT CHANCES WILL BE SET IN MAJORS SOME TIME NEXT WEEK.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
New York, Sept. 2.—The pennant races in both the National and American leagues entered the last stage on Wednesday. By the middle of next week, the contests in both leagues virtually will have been decided and baseball enthusiasts may be able to make their plans to see the world's series.

The three remaining contenders for the flag in the National league retained their respective standings today, although Philadelphia's lead was reduced by losing the first game of a series with New York. Boston, which lost to Cincinnati, failed to take advantage of an opportunity to displace Brooklyn from second position. Only eight points now separate the two teams. Moran's men, with a lead of two and a half games over Brooklyn, will have an opportunity to strengthen their position in the series with the Giants while the Brooklyn are playing a three game series at Boston.

The fight in the American league became more of a contest between Boston and Detroit today when the Tigers visited Detroit yesterday when the Tigers victory over Chicago more firmly established the White Sox in third place. The Red Sox continued their consistent winning by defeating Philadelphia and now seem to have a firm grasp on the flag.

It is true that Bill Donovan has made good with the Yanks. He has succeeded in raising them from the bottom.

AUSTRALIANS HAIL LES DARCEY AS THE COMING CHAMPION

Nineteen Year Old Middleweight Who Knocked Out Eddie McGorty Expected to Take Crown From Gibbons.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
New York, Sept. 2.—Australian boxing fans are hailing Les Darcey, the nineteen-year-old youth who recently knocked out Eddie McGorty, as the middleweight champion of the world. Fans elsewhere are not yet ready to concur in that opinion, but all agree that this latest star to flash above the pugilistic horizon is a formidable factor in the division. He deserves that consideration, even though recognition as the world's title holder in his class is withheld from him.

Darcey is quite a mystery to the fans in this country. Little or nothing is known about him here. His rise to the top was so meteoric that he became a sensation overnight. A little more than three months ago he was practically an unknown, both in his home country and here. It was not until he won from Jeff Smith, the Bayonne middleweight, on a foul in two rounds last May that he began to attract attention to himself. He enhanced his prestige a month later by knocking out Mick King, a victory that set all Australia by the heels. It was not until he knocked out McGorty last month that the fans in the Antipodes came to regard him as a world's champion. Now they have arranged for Jimmy Clabby to go out there and oppose him, feeling confident that Darcey will add whatever claim Jimmy has to the title to his own holdings. Then, if it should be necessary, Snowy Baker, the premier promoter in that part of the world, plans to import Mike Gibbons.

Much contradictory data have been written here about Darcey since he defeated McGorty.

Darcey is not yet twenty years old. He was born on "The Bend" in Maitland, which corresponds with the "South of the Slot" section in Frisco or "Hell's Kitchen" in New York. He is a "fate" guy, a member of the old school of fighters in this respect. He comes from a district which is half agricultural and half mining. Les worked as a farmer when he became old enough to handle a hoe and then became a miner. Later he was apprenticed to a blacksmith as a helper. He is still under a five-year contract to the smithy, and even now has to obtain permission from his master to box.

Working in the mines and at the forge he developed a powerful physique. He is described as an immense chest and arms and shoulders. His hands are like hams and strong as iron.

He literally fought his way into the ring. As a kid he was always in a fight, starting them with, and as often as not, without provocation. When sixteen years old he was urged to compete in an amateur tournament, which he did, and won in the 10 stone (140 pounds) and 10 stone 7 pounds classes. That was in 1911. In 1912 he won the only two fights he had. The next year he won four battles and lost one, a twenty-round decision to Rob Whitelaw. He won seven fights in 1914, beating, among others, Gus Christie. He lost on a foul to Fritz Holland in eighteen rounds and also a decision in twenty. Last January he lost to Jeff Smith, but four months later won on a foul from him in a return match. With this one exception he won all his fights thus far this year. In addition to Smith and McGorty he defeated Frank Loughrey, Fritz Holland (twice), Henri Demien, and Mick King.

Altogether Darcey has had twenty-

FEATHERWEIGHT BATTLE ON LABOR DAY HAILED BY FANS AS IMPORTANT BOUT

Fight fans consider the twelve-round contest between Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland and Challenger Alvie Miller of Lorain, Ohio, at Cedar Point on Labor day, the most important bout between boys of this weight that has been arranged in years. Miller is the most sensational featherweight in the game today, barring Kilbane. He has had some forty fights and has won almost half of them by the 'knock-out' route.

four professional fights. He lost four and won all the rest, twelve by knockouts. He is an aggressively clever boxer, a combination seldom met with, and a terrific puncher. He was just a rip-tearing fighter when he started, but under the tutelage of Dave Smith, former middleweight champion of Australia, he has become a very clever boxer.

GARDNER AND SAWYER MEET TODAY AT GOLF IN DETROIT TOURNEY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—Two giants of the golf world were slain Wednesday afternoon in the second round of match play for the national amateur championship. Francis Ouimet of Woodland Hills, holder of the national title, was decisively outplayed and beaten by James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit. The result was 5 up and 4 holes to play. Jerome Travers of Upper Montclair, N. J., was defeated 2 up and 1 to play. May R. Maston of Springfield, N. J., Travers is the present open champion.

Winners of the other matches were: D. E. Sawyer of Wheaton, Ill.; Robert A. Gardner of Chicago; Nelson Whitney of New Orleans; Sherrill Sherman of Utica; John G. Anderson of New York; and Howard Lee of Detroit.

The conquerors of Ouimet and Travers are young men both in their early twenties. Neither had previously won an important title.

Lee and Nelson Whitney had easy matches. Each won 3 and 8, the former from Hamilton Kerr of Manchester, Vt., and Whitney from A. C. Ulmer of Jacksonville, Fla. Lee got a 72 for his day's work which equals the medal play record for the course. Whitney took things easy and turned in an ordinary card. Sawyer won 6 and 5 from Gardner. White of Plushing, L. I., and added another 73 to his splendid performance since Saturday. He had his match well in hand at every stage.

Second in the state in basketball was the result of his good work in the spring of 1914. Only after an overtime game, was Appleton able to nose out the Blue and white players. Baseball was not attempted that spring or last spring.

Under Curtis, the basketball teams won first place twice at the Beloit tourney and won first last year at the Beloit tourney. A splendid array of trophies, including a sheepskin, grace the large case at the high school, all obtained largely through the efforts of Coach Curtis. Lack of heavy material prevented the basketball team of last spring from entering Appleton.

Coach Curtis has gained a reputation as an official in both school sports and gave entire satisfaction. He will enter the state university this fall, working for a degree in commercial work.

Old record shows that Wilbert Robinson made seven hits in one game—six singles and a double. "Never could understand why the record wasn't credited to me," says Robby "but I'm not worrying. I'll trade it for the 1915 pennant any day."

BRADEN DIRECT SET NEW RECORD AT MADISON IN WINNING FREE-FOR-ALL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 2.—Cheered by 15,000 spectators, Braden Direct, station, owned and driven by Fred Bagdon of Denver, Col., Wednesday, won the free-for-all race at the Dane county fair. He got away badly in the first heat and was beaten by Walter Cochate, but he took the next three heats, doing the last one in 2:05, which is a new track record.

The famous William held the old track record of 2:05 1/2, which he made last year. Cochate took second money. The Knight of Strathmore, owned by George Bieler of Monroe, Wis., was the only other horse to start. The purse was $1,000. Summary:

MORRIS MILLER

Bobby Quinn, secretary of the Columbus American Association club, is being boosted by his friends, and they are legion, for the presidency of the National Association, the position that Mike Sexton has held since the organization of the association almost. Sexton retired from baseball several years ago, and his office has been principally an honorary one. Intimations from Columbus are that Quinn will attempt to smother off the boom started for him.

Shelton, the outfielder secured by the Yankees from Columbus, is highly thought of by men who have played with him in the American Association. The only wonder is that he has not been given a real try-out by some major league team before.

Behold the fate of two left-handers. Pennock opens his season with a one-hit game and Marquard with a no-hit game. Yet both get the can by midseason.

Suggestion to base ball magnates: Why not hire female umpires? Even John Evers would be rendered speechless.

The Giants and Cardinals have met in four extra-inning tilts this year and the Cardinals have won three—two of ten and one of thirteen. The Cardinals beat the pestering Missourians in a sixteen-inning war.

Jim Gaffney put his gains of 1914 into a ball park. He will put his gains of 1915 into a ball team.

All over the country golf courses are being enlarged. This became necessary when ball players and athletes took up the sport.

A Cincinnati made the assertion early in the season that Groh and Herzog were the best defensive pair on the left side of the diamond, and from the way they have been operating it would seem the assertion is gospel truth.

The New York Nationals have purchased the release of Eddie Harrison, who plays right field for the Dallas club. Harrison was with the Giants in Texas in the spring of 1914, and was left in Dallas. He comes from one of the Hudson river towns.

Pepper and hustle are all right, very worth qualities, but we should say that Wally Schang, at third would do better with a trifle more repose. He is so strenuous and vehement about every play that he loses balance and accuracy.

Shreveport is pulling the bush-town stuff of barring an umpire from the ball park. This was done in the case of Umpire George Miller recently, and by consent Mathews, who was in the stand, was called out to hold the indicator. Either constant losing has affected the heads of the Shreveport magnates, or they have succumbed to Syd Smith's bad influence.

Barney Dreyfuss says he'll fight to a finish to hold Rule Benton, who Herman says belongs to the Giants. President Hempstead probably will fight to a finish to hold him. In the meantime, President Toner interferences somewhat with Dreyfuss' fight to a finish by ordering the latter not to use Benton, and asserting that the pitcher belongs to New York. Apparently the finish of the fight to a finish isn't far off.

"Greatest outfield I ever saw," quoth Fred Snodgrass when he arrived at Gaffney's new park. The pressure on him, the recent typographical, not humanly.

Star ball players are in great demand—scarcely as hens' teeth and all that—yet this year such rarities as Collins, Jackson, Barry, Murphy and James change clubs without any other effort than writing the satisfactory figures on a check.

George Kelley is the talkingest Giant who has turned up in countless blue moons. If he and Mollwitz ever play on the same infield at the same time the catchmen of conversation will be calumnious.

A veteran showed up in splendid form at the big military meet at Aldershot on Aug. 7. Sergeant Tom Arries, the Welsh international, won the three-mile race against a large field. Arthur is 40 years old and yet he ran his first mile in 3m 50s, the two miles in 10m 48s and the three in 15m 25s, is good running for any company.

C. N. Sneedhouse, the British A. A. quarter-mile champion in 1912 and 1914, race beat Homer Baker in last year's race, is now a second lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps. He was a dispatch rider early in the war.

Lawson Robertson has a good friend in court—if he really wishes to get the coaching job at Penn—in Ted Meredith. The "middle distance king" thinks that Robertson is a past master in the art of training.

Women are likely to be admitted to football in the next grand American handicap. Why not? There are good trap shooters among women the country over.

Apparently Rube Marquard and John McGraw have decided as to the southpaw pitcher's future. Rube still says he will not go to the Toronto club, and demands an unconditional release, and that McGraw must report to the Toronto club if he wants to continue to draw his $5,000 salary.

A thirteen-inning game followed by a twelve-inning contest would make it appear that the Tigers and the Red Sox are sincere in their determination to fight it out to the bitter end.

LA FOLLETTE'S STAND.

It is said in press dispatches, emanating from the anti-administration source, that Senator La Follette is about to begin a campaign against Governor Philipp and his friends who opposed the "Tax Eaters" as soon as expedient. Meanwhile the question the nation over is that of the effect of the La Follette merchant marine bill on American commerce. Press dispatches announce that this company with trans pacific vessels after the other are selling their vessels or transferring their registration and why.

Of course this measure was passed by a democratic congress by a vote on party lines but still it is La Follette's bill. He had used the railroads of Wisconsin as long as he could to advance and then turned against them. He has forced legislation that is so injurious that it will take years to undo its effect, in his native state and not content with that he turned his attention to the oceanic conditions and aided in crippling their future as he did the railroads, without working one bit of benefit to the American people and only increasing the general burden of the tax payer.

La Follette may attack Philipp for reducing taxes if he pleases. The political world will smile at him if he does. He may seek to bolster up his mariners bill but if he does it is safe to say that the shippers will have something to say and the lowering of editorial clippings for the purpose of reproduction from the Chicago Examiner shows how the democratic press of the country view the situation.

ARMISTICE.

This glorious flag, that used to fly at the peaks of ships carrying more than four-fifths of all our foreign trade, is now being pulled down, not by the enemy.

For more than half a century prior to the Civil War all foreign goods brought across seas in American ships were allowed a reduction of 5 per cent in tariff duties. This was a substitute for ship subsidies. It worked well. It put the American flag in every ocean. It gave us a great merchant marine and largely increased our foreign trade. It was good democratic doctrine. It had age and experience, wisdom and success to commend it.

The same provision was written into the Democratic tariff bill in the last Congress by Mr. Underwood. It was Section J, sub-section 7, and read as follows:

That a discount of five per centum on all duties imposed by this act shall be allowed on such goods, wares and merchandise as shall be imported in vessels admitted to registration under the laws of the United States.

By executive order, President Wilson directed that this act of Congress should be ignored by all federal officers. He held that it was objectionable under our treaties. The United States Court of Claims decided that the President had no right to do this. But the President overruled the Court of Claims and decided that the federal officers should continue to ignore the law until the Supreme Court decided otherwise. A suit is now pending in the higher court to determine whether the executive is vested with the power to set aside this act of Congress. This means two more years of nullification of the work of Congress.

Following the refusal to execute a law of congress in favor of American ships, the executive last March signed another act, called the Seamen's Bill, imposing new and harder conditions upon all American ship-owners; requiring seamen to get certificates of capability, placing new restrictions upon clearance papers, and exacting that a majority of every crew shall speak the language of the shipmaster.

Under this latter provision our foreign commerce, already languishing on the Atlantic Ocean, is summarily destroyed on the Pacific Ocean.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has for a generation operated the largest fleet on the Pacific. Recently it gave notice that it will now go out of business. The Great Northern steamships are already out of business. The Robert Dollar line on the Pacific gave up before the Pacific Bill.

After November 4 next, the United States soldiers going to and from Hawaii and the Philippines, our own dominions, will be transported across the Pacific by Japanese steamships—unless one of our few army transports is ordered to take them!

The author of the Seamen's Bill put into it humane ideas about the treatment of sailors, and also humane safety regulations for passengers, and he intended to enforce these new rules on foreign as well as on domestic ships.

But to put these laws in full effect it was necessary for the President to denounce (give notice of termination of) twenty treaties with other nations. This he has done. But a year's notice is required. Until then the new regulations will not apply to any foreign ship, and in the meantime will kill off all or nearly all American ships.

In this matter we see the consequences of having as President a man who knows little about business and who does not take the advice or counsel of any man who knows much about it.

Indeed, experience in large affairs, or prior success, seems to constitute ineptitude to office.

It gives us poor consolation to remember that under the Democratic party the American flag attained a proud eminence on every ocean and in every foreign port and won the war of 1812 on the sea even before General Jackson's victory of New Orleans on the land; and very little hope when the Secretary of the Treasury says, as he did recently: "The Democratic party is pledged to provide an adequate merchant marine for the United States, and in my opinion no time should be lost in taking action."

Is it not an extraordinary fact that in the case of the Seamen's Bill, which imposed new hardships upon the dying American merchant marine, the President decided to sustain the law and to nullify all foreign treaties inconsistent with it, while in the case of the Underwood preferential duty, designed solely to put the dying American merchant marine on its feet again, the President decided to sustain the foreign treaties and to nullify the law?

THE INDEMNITY PROPOSITION.
Promises are cheap. Actions count louder than actual words and the infernal regions are paved with good intentions we are told. Still however, we are content with promises that mean nothing. At present there are many points of difference between this country and the belligerent powers of Europe. One old proverb says that money is the root of all evil yet we can not make the wheels of industry go round it.

One eastern exchange says that when the statesmen of belligerent powers begin to promise their people indemnification for their losses, out of the resources of enemies presumably equally exhausted with themselves, the termination of war is not far off. An indemnity is an actual cash, like that paid by the French in the three years following the war of 1870, is unthinkable. Another year of war will put such an indemnity out of the question for any of the belligerents.

There is another conceivable indemnity which might be exacted by the victor. This would be the occupation of territory of such industrial and strategic value as to pay large return over a measurable period of years. Still a third indemnity, and one which was exacted by Prussia in 1871, would be an advantageous trade treaty with, in fact, all its favors on the side of the victor.

But the defect of these various forms of ransom is that they tend to nullify their own advantages. The remedy of today is the trading customer of tomorrow. If you destroy his purchasing power, by the imposition of a burden precluding the normal growth of national wealth, the last state of the victor is worse than the first.

Termination of the war within any measurable time would, at the present time, leave practically only Great Britain in a position to pay indemnity in the event of complete German victory. But that victory could only be achieved by obliterating the British navy. So far as military advantage at sea is concerned, the German submarine forces have been negligible.

The greatest victory of the war, overshadowing all the others combined, was achieved on the day the war broke out by the British navy, without firing a shot.

Trafalgar was a decisive victory. But for ten years afterwards British commerce suffered far more heavily, from fast frigates and privateers, than it has done from effect upon British trade, measured in terms of national wealth and population of a century ago, year by year, was far more serious than all the submarines have done.

What hope, then, is there for an indemnity from Great Britain? And, if the Teuton alliance is defeated, how will Germany indemnify us, by any conceivable form of financing? That some such compensation will be demanded as a first condition of peace, may be assumed; and it is fair to remember that in spite of the staggering war debts peace will automatically improve all national credit.

Well, perhaps General Scott after his experience with the Utes may be able to convince General Carranza that he is wrong but it is doubtful. After the retreat from Vera Cruz of the United States Carranza is not easily impressed.

No matter what you do say about the democratic administration it can not be said that President Wilson is talking too much. He is one of those silent men who thinks and does not, who talk and then thinks.

If the football season is to be anything like the present summer the aspirant for gridiron honors should begin at once and take swimming lessons as to be prepared for any emergency.

This talk about the favorite sons is being resented most justly by the favorite daughters who do not think this idea of any state picking out a favorite son while they are deprived of franchise.

Czar Nicholas says that his will is unchangeable but there is no question that his army is extremely mobile when it comes to following out his plans.

Mexicans may have been tempted to make raids into Texas, owing to swell of the real cooking that the Texas housewives are famous for if no other reason.

Mexican Generals are conspicuous everywhere except when it comes to the lists of dead and wounded. Then their names are lacking. Why?

There is no reason to blame the weather bureau about the having been anything mean about rainfall this year, to say the least.

Kernels of The Law

Distrain of Animals Doing Damage.

Distrain is the holding of any property of another person as security or indemnity for charges or damages. The owner or occupant of any lands may distrain any beast doing damage on his premises, either while upon the premises or upon immediate pursuit of such beasts escaping and before returning to the inclosure or immediate care of the owner or keeper. He may then keep the beasts upon his own premises or in some public pound in his town, city or village until the damages shall be appraised. If he knows who is the owner he shall give him twenty-four hours' notice if he lives in the same town, city, or village, or forty-eight hours' notice if he lives some other place in the county. He must mention in the notice the time and place the animals were distrained, and the number of them, and that he will within a certain time within three days apply to a justice of the peace for the appointment of three disinterested freeholders to appraise the damages. The liability also extends to praise the damages.

Probably the finest example of self-restraint is that given by the woman who does not succumb to the temptation to put a little vanilla in it.

"The groom" says a Kansas paper in its account of the wedding, "was dressed in a suit of blue serge." But the Kansas paper failed to tell what the condemned man ate for breakfast and neglected to comment upon the manner in which he composed himself on the way to the scaffold.

The Thesaurus.
"A fellow came through here about two months ago selling what he called a 'thesaurus' for one-dollar-every-ounce-in-a-bottle, and Hank Tumms fell for it," said Uncle Ezra Harkins.

"Is that so?" asked the traveling man. "Yes," replied Uncle Ezra. "Hank bought one and determined to make his fortune out'n it. He built a large wrought iron cage in his back yard and put up a high board fence around it. He said he didn't know how large the critter was and he made the cage plenty big enough for it. Hank claimed as how a thesaurus was a big, wreath-like animal and said he would exhibit it at ten-cents a throw. He didn't know what he would feed it, but bought fifteen tons of hay for a starter and put it in the cage. That the thesaurus would be on exhibition to the general public. Then everybody set down and waited for the thesaurus to come. Finally the mail man left it. It was a box about the size of a dried herring box and when Hank opened it he found the thesaurus was nothing but a book about the use of a dictionary. And there he had gone and blowed $15 for the cage and hay and advertising."

"What did he do with the cage?" asked the traveling man. "Oh, the folks got together and put Hank in the cage and are now exhibiting him as the biggest bonehead in captivity and his family will probably realize quite a neat little sum."

I listened intently to a friend of mine. Who knew race horses in a manner fine. And I placed my money on a piebald mare. And we dreamed of a fortune we would surely share.

The mare got away on time with the rest. Of all the entries she looked the best. She went like a shot for a quarter mile.

My friend and I had a quiet smile. Our mare forged ahead, yes, inch by inch. We looked no longer, for it was a matter of inches.

We took our tickets to the bookie's stall. Prepared to cash in for once and all. But something happened while we were away.

Just what it was would be hard to say. Three nags came in and, forty rods back.

Our mare came pounding around the track. Of all race news this is the worst. The early pluggers don't bet back first.

FIGHTING FOR GERMANY DOES NOT EXEMPT MEN FROM THE CHURCH TAX

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Berlin, Sept. 2.—Fighting for the Fatherland does not exempt one from paying the universal church tax according to a ruling by the highest authorities who have been deliberating on countless appeals for an opinion on this question.

The chief church council of the evangelical church decides that a man does not sever his connection with his church by going to the front, and that if he worships at a field church he does so free of charge, so that his responsibility to his regular congregation does not cease—financially at least.

Only a minor proportion of Germans are members of a church, or attend services of any character (because of the tax, it has been claimed), but they are nevertheless not immune unless they can prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that they hold no religious whatsoever or have no religious connections—such as a wife who attends church, or such as having been married by a minister. The great bulk of the soldiers at the front thus are affected by the ruling.

The Daily Novelette

The Dreamer.

The trouble with the easy going fellow is that he is so often hard to get started. I think of it every day. It was shortly after four o'clock in the morning that the Great Idea came to Wavery Bones.

A poor man all his life, he now saw his way to affluence, not to say influence.

With a glad shout he sat up and hung his legs over his hall room bed.

"Why didn't I think of it years ago," he wondered happily. "Let's see, now, I'll swap my penknife for a leather wallet, and then I'll have a fountain pen, and then I'll have a alpaca coat, and then I'll have an alpaca coat, which I'll exchange for a set of pearl studs."

"Then I'll have a set of pearl studs. I'll get a linen table cloth in exchange for that, and then I'll have a linen table cloth, which I will sell for $11. Then I'll have $11, and I'll buy stock in a powder company with it. War orders will come in and the stock will go up 2,000 per cent. In three months I'll sell my stock for—"

Suddenly he stopped. "Great heavens!" he thought. "I haven't got any penknife!"

And with a heartbreaking cry he climbed out on the roof and hurled himself down the chimney.

Drop-Light Shade.
Drop-lights in a bedroom often cause serious discomfort to the eyes of sick people. To prevent this take a child's shoe box and in one end cut a slit large enough to insert the wire cord. The light will then be encased on three sides; one-half of the room will be almost dark, and the other half brilliantly lighted. The light can be directed as desired by simply turning the box about.—Good Housekeeping.

A very stout lady at the zoological gardens, says the Philadelphia Record, was seeing the lions fed for the first time, and was rather surprised by the limited amount of meat that was given them. "That seems to me to be a very small piece of meat for the lion," she said to the attendant. The man looked at her with a glimmer of amusement in his eye. "It may seem a small piece to you, mum," he said, "but it's heaps for the lion."

The Ladybird Beetle.
A female ladybird beetle becomes grandmother to seventy-five billions of her kind in six months. She lays her eggs on the melon vines, and the whitish grubs hatched from them crawl over the plants, gobbling up every aphid they come across. When late autumn arrives the mature beetles fly up into the mountains, where they gather in clustered masses among fallen leaves and pine needles to spend the winter.

SCHOOL DAYS START TUESDAY

Many Helpful Suggestions Are Made by Janesville Merchants For the Parents.

Tuesday, September 7th, ushers in another year of school and marks the end of vacation days and vacation clothes.

To the mother the days preceding the opening of school are filled with planning, working and buying in order that her children will be properly outfitted. On the two center pages of tonight's Gazette there are presented suggestions from the business houses of Janesville which will do much to aid the parents in their preparations.

Every parent should read carefully these announcements so that they may know the best places, offering the best service. Clothing, shoes, hats, caps, school supplies, elimination of eye trouble, entertainment for school children and a school that trains for business are all incorporated under the heading of "School Days."

Not only do the public schools open on Tuesday but also the Janesville Business College which has been newly decorated and remodeled.

HUMAN LIFE LIGHTLY HELD

Society Formerly Made Little or No Provision to Protect Its Members.

The value of life has fluctuated greatly in the different periods of the world's history. To the Spartans life was cheap. The highest duty was to be a soldier; the greatest honor was to give away life for the state. Napoleon estimated the thousands of lives his conquest for a universal empire would cost, and he marched on, sacrificing them. Life had little value. Under Henry VIII, death was the punishment for stealing three shillings; there were 253 crimes punishable by death; 72,000 persons were executed in his reign.

Formerly war, pestilence and famine swept off humanity by the countless millions. During the thirty years' war 18,000,000 of Germany's population were killed. The black death devoured 25,000,000 people in Europe during the fourteenth century. Three hundred and fifty famines have swept over the earth since the beginning of history. Human life has been destroyed like bubbles. Today all this has changed.

Smallpox and yellow fever, for ages the two dreaded horrors of mankind, have lost their terror. The new discoveries in surgery have alleviated untold suffering. Formerly operations were performed while the subject writhed and shrieked with pain. Today anesthetics render the patient as insensible as a mountain boulder. The leading physicians of the world a few weeks ago cheered long and loudly Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller institute, when he announced to them that he had stopped the hearts of animals for two and one-half minutes and performed operations on their valves.

Animals have played an important part in the eradication of human diseases. From the horse the antitoxin is prepared that saves thousands of children from death by diphtheria. From the cow the vaccine preparation for immunizing against smallpox is made.—Leslie's Weekly.

As to the Courthouse. The courthouse was not instituted entirely as a means of providing punishment for evil doers; indeed, its chief business seems to be to house men who collect taxes and punish people who do not pay up promptly.—Ed. Howe.

EUGENIA KELLY, GOTHAM HEIRESS, IS TO MARRY AL DAVIS, HER TANGO HERO

Eugenia Kelly and Al Davis.

The gaudy, glittering romance of Miss Eugenia Kelly, who is the daughter of the late New York banker and has a million lovely dollars in her own right—the gaudy, glittering romance of the New York tango "dens" and their parasitic coteries, supposed to have been squashed when Miss Kelly promised a New York magistrate to go home with her father and be a nice little girl thereon—well, it's come up anew. For Miss Kelly refuses to stay home with mamma. And she refuses to give up her old infatuation. Especially does she refuse to give up Al Davis, the Broadway toe twirler and fancy fellow.

A Business School might have comprehensive, competent experienced teachers, or competent teachers, or courses of study and up-to-date equipment, but it is not considered a good school.

When the student and the business public find all these things combined with efficient management and success in training young men and young women for active business life, it is easy to understand why it is considered the best school.

Experience has taught us, that to serve the best employer and ourselves, these essentials must be of efficiency.

In the management of this institution the requirements of the business public receive first consideration. The TEACHERS are employed with a view to their ability to meet present-day demands. The SCHOOL EQUIPMENT includes EVERY OFFICE APPLIANCE, EVERY OFFICE FURNITURE. The SCHOOL QUARTERS are well ventilated, say, a

Russia's Water Resources Will Prove Barrier To The Germans

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—European Russia is over-rich in water resources, and her rivers, lakes and marshes have taken the place of mountain systems in her scheme of defense toward the West. Each important stand of the Muscovite armies against the present invasion of the Teutonic forces has been made along a waterway. Teutonic arms have had to win, successively, passages of the Wartha, the San, the upper Dniester, the Vistula, the Narw, the Niemen and the Bug, and now the Russians are reported to be regrouping on the line of the Pinski marshes and the Duna, or the southern Dvina River. The National Geographic Society, in its statement today gives the following description of the Dvina, which has been on a character of great military interest as the immediate barrier to German advance on Petrograd:

"The Duna River is now filling the part that the Vistula River filled throughout the first part of the war, that the Bug filled following the fall of Warsaw and Ivangorod, and the powerful fortress at Duenaburg is now the importance of Novo Gorkovsk on the contested Vistula line or Brest Litovsk on a contested line of the Bug. The Duna cuts across the paths leading to the north and Petrograd and into the north central interior, where are the rich industrial cities, Moscow, Tver, Riel. While the Courland is rich, the real resource of Russia begin to the west of this third Russian line.

"The Duna has its source in a small lake-cluster, about 300 feet above sea level, in the government of Tver. It rises in the same highland where two of the mightiest rivers of Russia begin their courses—the Dnieper which flows to the south and empties at Kherson into the Black Sea, and the Volga, which flows southeast and empties into the Caspian. The source of the Volga, the river around whose course a Russian folk evolved and a Russian power grew, lie in the Valdai Hills, a few miles north of the lakes that give rise to the River Duna. The sources of the Dnieper approach near to the Duna on the south.

"The river sweeps in a flat arc, southwest-northwest, to its mouth on the Gulf of Riga. It takes up the drainage of an area of 22,360 square miles and its a commercial way of first importance in western Russia. Riga, situated ten miles from its mouth, is one of Russia's greatest port cities, and a significant part of the products that its merchants assemble are brought down the Duna. The large ocean-going steamers can ascend only to Riga, but river boats ply as far as Vitshak. Larger river boats navigate between Duenaburg and Riga, a distance of 135 miles.

"The river is 650 miles long. Its upper course lies through a broken country, giving rise to many irregularities in its bed, in its lower course, it has an average depth of about thirty feet and an average breadth of 1400 feet. During the time of the spring floods, these measurements are largely increased. The Duna then, often piles up fifteen feet above its usual level and spreads out for a width of more than a mile. The river is free from ice on an average of 240 days in the year.

"It is estimated that more than 2,000,000 tons of freight are transported over the Duna each year. Among its tributaries, the Mezha, Usvyay, Kaspya, Luga, Dvina and Boldyera are also navigable. The Beresina canal connects the Duna with the Dnieper, thus giving a freight route by water from the Baltic Sea, across Europe, to the Black Sea. As is the general case with Russian rivers, the Duna abounds in fish, a very delicate species of salmon being caught in its waters."

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH K. CAMERON

ARE YOU SURE?

Is that quotation just right? I asked a woman who had been quoting me some lines of Shakespeare. I wanted to verify it before using it.

"Yes," she answered promptly.

"Are you sure?"

"She looked a bit shaken."

"Well, no, I'm not sure," she admitted.

I looked it up and found that she had no right to be sure.

How few things the average person is sure of.

How many things we almost know! How few things we know!

I often have occasion to ask people, "Are you sure?" about some bit of information that they have given with an air of positiveness and assurance, and it is surprising how few people do not weak before that question.

To be able to face that interrogation in regard to any information you have given, any statement you have made, is an ideal worth striving for.

But it is at least better to know enough to be afraid of the question than not to be honest enough to know when to be afraid.

From Assurance to Sureness

You probably remember the old proverb (I started to say Persian proverb and then asked myself if I were sure and decided I was not). He who knows not that he knows not is a fool, shun him; he who knows and knows not that he knows is simple, teach him; he who knows and knows not that he knows is asleep, wake him; he who knows and knows that he knows is wise, follow him.

You will notice that the lowest rung in that ladder is the man (or woman) who is sure without having any right to be, and the highest is the accurate man who is sure with good reason.

Accuracy is just as rare as positiveness is common.

The Field Is Crowded But Not the Hill

One often hears that a girl has little chance nowadays to make a good salary as a stenographer because the field is so crowded. The field where the positive and accurate girls flock may be crowded but the hill to which the accurate girl climbs is not.

I heard one business man talking to another the other day about a letter which his stenographer had just handed to him. "There are three mistakes in the letter and one in the address. That's the sort of slovenly, inaccurate work I get right along," he fulminated.

"Well," said the other, "you fire her instead of fussing?"

"Yes," said the other man, "and get another just like her."

Of course one cannot, unless one is a genius, know many things accurately. But one can at least know accurately the few things that it is one's business to know.

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Glimpses of Married Life. . . . N's "Hello, Nell," I have been thinking of you for some time. I have been thinking of the sunny living room like an invigorating breeze.

"What is the matter, dear?" she asked, as she met her with a wan smile.

"Oh, nothing," said Nell with a martyred air. "Have some candy."

"Yes, pass," said Nell, handing a box of chocolates.

"Aren't you going to take some?" asked Olive, taking one from the dainty box.

"You used to be very fond of chocolates," said Nell, did not reply, but Olive saw a tear drop on the little dress she was making.

"Tell me what hurts, dear," Olive dropped on a stool at her feet and caught both her hands. Nell drew one hand away to hunt for her handkerchief.

"Oh, I'm so unhappy; life seems very dark to me," she sobbed.

"Life dark! Come, now, that's a great way to talk with your pretty home, darling baby and lovely hair. Poss up. You've been losing sleep or overworking. It all amounts to the same thing. Air your griefs; you'll find they are very light and will float away."

"He said such cruel things before he left the house. I cried nearly all day. I just can't stand it. I do my best and—"

"Tell me, had you been kept awake the night before?" queried Olive in a businesslike manner.

"Yes; Hal is cutting his stomach teeth, and we had very little sleep."

"I thought so. Both of you were worn out and something went wrong. Dick went to pieces. He's a bundle of nerves, anyway. Wasn't that it?"

"Yes," answered Nell in a chastened tone.

"He was sorry for it the minute he lost his head," said Nell faintly. "He didn't say anything."

"Men rarely do that, daddy says. Didn't he do something?"

"Well, he brought me this box of candy," Nell passed it again.

"And you didn't even show your appreciation by eating a piece. I'm ashamed of you, Nell."

"As if all the candy in the world could wipe out the memory of the unkind things he said and packed forth Nell, wiping her smarting eyes."

"Well, Nell, count your mercies. Here you sit nursing your wounds and pitying yourself. Till warrant you have thought of nothing else but those unkind words for two days."

"Naturally; how could I forget them?" Nell said sullenly.

"Why not think of how jolly and kind he has been a hundred times, on an opportunity like that? You pick out the few thorns and occupy your time sticking them into yourself just for the pleasure of seeing the blood."

"Said all that, I am ashamed of you, Nell. Daddy took me for a long walk just before I was married and said some wonderful things to me. Dear daddy!"

"Tell me what he said, please," for Olive had relapsed into silence.

"He said, 'Marriage is not happiness itself, my girl, unless other things are as they should be. It is an opportunity for happiness, and you must understand that all our duties bring great responsibilities, great possibilities of failure. Often it doubles one's cares, divides one's time. If you are marrying just to be happy, you will achieve great misery; if you marry that you may enrich your life and your husband's, that your may be of service to a good man and enable him to accomplish what he could not do alone, you will be happy.'"

"How contemptible my attitude seems after that," said Nell softly.

"Be thankful Dick cares enough about his burst of temper to want to 'make up,' and remember these words are only stinging gnats that buzz about; they do not touch his solid worth." Olive rose and kissed her friend.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Should a Christian who has joined church go to dances or parties which last later than twelve Saturday evening in some towns?

(2) Would you suggest some things that about six Christian girls can do to pass a Sunday afternoon?

(3) Does a boy tease a girl because she gets angry or because he is jealous? I mean teasing her about other boys.

(4) How can a girl get over being bashful in company? I am sixteen.

(5) Would you suggest for me to use the juice of half a lemon or a tablespoon of peroxide in rinsing water for the hair to keep its light color?

(6) There is a boy whom I love dearly who wants my company, but my father will not let me go with him. He likes his mother and takes good care of her. He earns a large salary and has good manners and dresses nicely. Should I go with him anyway?

No. Twelve o'clock is late enough for any girl to dance.

(2) Make candy, read, go walking.

(3) It is a characteristic of boys to tease. They do not do it for any special reason, but just to torment.

(4) To go with different groups of people and to meet and talk to as many strangers as possible is a good way to overcome bashfulness. A girl of sixteen is apt to be shy and self-conscious.

(5) The juice of half a lemon.

(6) No. You are too young to disregard your father's wishes.

I am away from my home and people and am very lonely. How do you think I can win his love back and get him to take me places? He stays home with me but very little of his time.

A LONELY MOTHER AND WIFE. Why not try to live for yourself and your husband for happiness as little as possible. Do a reasonable amount of "pleasing" him, and keep happy whether he is pleased or not. Let him go as often as he wishes and appear to be satisfied. Think fine and happy thoughts, first because it is right always to do so, and secondly because you will become day by day more and more attractive, and in time, if he has a heart he will come back to you and will stay. Don't cry; don't sulk; and don't try too hard to please him. Always remember that, "To tie a man tight, tie him loose."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl seventeen years old. I received a card from a young man I met a short time ago. He wishes me to write to him. Please advise me, as I don't know what to do. I know nothing about him, but he seems genuine.

Write to him for a while if you want to. You can tell by the nature of his letters whether you care to continue the correspondence.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me how shall I clean a bracelet that has become tarnished, so as to make it look bright and also a silver watch band?

If the bracelet is silver, use silver polish. If it is gold and the gold is wearing off, nothing can be done unless it is dipped again.

Use silver polish on the mesh bag too. If it has a lining, draw the lining through the opening of the bag and clean the links.

QUEEN WILHELMINA IS FOND OF DANCING WITH LITTLE DAUGHTER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

The Hague, Netherlands, Sept. 2.—Queen Wilhelmina is now often seen taking her little daughter, Princess Juliana, for a boating trip on the small lakes in the vicinity of the House-in the Wood, her summer palace near the Hague, and her Majesty needs no waterman to row her skiff.

She is quite at home with a pair of oars and delights in the exercise. This (Sunday) morning, as on many summer Sundays, the royal mother was watched by crowds of visitors to the seat of the Lowlands government as she rowed steadily about the lake, while her daughter coasted idly in an effort to catch some of the small fish which swam in the water.

Most of the people who watched the Queen and her daughter today were tourists from other parts of Holland taking advantage of the absence of the customary crowds of foreign visitors—kept away by the war—to see the residential city of their sovereign.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS TO TALK PROSPECTS AT 'FRISCO MEETING

Political Complexions of Next Congress Will Be Carefully Analyzed Preparatory to National Suffrage Campaign.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

San Francisco, Sept. 2.—The political complexion of the sixty-fourth congress will be discussed and discussed by the suffragists attending the convention of women voters at San Francisco on September 14, which is expected to continue for three days. About 3,000 women are expected to participate. One lone man, Mr. Braley of Los Angeles, will make an afternoon speech.

The second day, September 14, is to be "Everywoman's Day," dedicated to the women of California and the nation. A splendid pageant will be the feature of the night.

Miss Gail Laughlin and Mrs. Ida Finney MacKrell, California women, will speak and a reception and ball will be given the following evening.

The third day will be devoted to a discussion of the political complexion of the sixty-fourth congress and to a big meeting.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. George W. Fowler of Colorado Springs, Mrs. Edna S. Latimer of Baltimore, Mrs. B. M. Wilson of Goldfield, Nevada, Mrs. J. M. Jones of New Orleans, Mrs. S. B. M. Young of Helena, Montana; Dr. Annie Elsie Abel of Mount Holyoke College, Maryland, and Mrs. E. J. Bayley, the "father of suffrage in California."

The first political session of the convention opens with a discussion of "The Suffrage as a Federal Issue." Mrs. B. M. Wilson, of California, will speak on "The Waste of Time."

Every suffrage state will discuss "The Woman Voter's Need of National Education."

The pageant at the exposition will be a dramatic pantomime, interspersed with musical interludes and massed dance movements by 400 men and women.

Mrs. William Kent, wife of Representative Kent, will give the "History of the Susan B. Anthony Movement." Miss Gail Laughlin, a California attorney, will tell of the attitude of Susan B. Anthony on "Suffrage Tactics."

Miss Ida Finney MacKrell of California will speak on "Party Organization and Reform."

The speakers at the public mass meeting, to be held at Scottish Rite Auditorium in San Francisco, will include Francis J. Hall, Miss Alice Paul, Mrs. O. H. Belmont, J. S. Wilson and Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson.

Friday afternoon the exposition authorities with the mayor of San Francisco and the governor of the state, will present to the Congressional Union a memorial of the convention and of educational work at the suffrage booth.

A delegation of California women will make the trip to Washington to join other delegates from the voting states in asking the federal government to support the woman's cause.

Miss Charlotte Anita Whitney, chairman of the California branch of the Union, will lead the delegation.

TYPES "Homesick" By Sara Moore

Margaret's endurance was broken by something no weightier than a straw.

She could have borne the twisted lines of her hopelessly tarnished fork. She wiped it on her napkin with patient disgust, prompted by resignation. When she first came to the boarding-house, cracked china and half-cleaned silver aroused her to resentment and even secret tears.

She was discouraged to find her well-schooled fastidiousness rising to violent antipathy as her glance moved to the butter chip beside her plate. Like the yellow scraping of a painter's palette, the greasy salt of butter had been wiped on the edge of the dish, where it lay melting limply into an uninviting smear. Margaret pretended to ignore it. She hid it behind her water glass and told herself sternly that in dealing with conditions beyond one's control one can rise superior to them by maintaining a proper mental attitude.

She concentrated on the waiter's weary: "Evening, Miss. Noodle or vegetable soup?"

The darkey was moving her glass to make room for a plate of fresh bread. As the fact of the butter again obtruded itself the girl folded her napkin.

"Nothing, Matthew," she choked hastily. "It's too hot to eat."

Crane's difficulty was not from the outside. He had a sickly fear of depression. He had recoiled and struggled out of one set of blues which had held up his ideas and kept his type-writer unused for days. Discouragement, uncertainty, distrust of his own workmanship, and a closing down again. There was no one to help him ward off the mental battle. When he hurried from his lonely room it was to drift with the other homeless wanderers in the street.

The restaurants looked hot and noisy. He turned from them to the wide, half-deserted avenue stretching to the great pavement and shining temptingly to the lengths ahead in the twilight, bent on walking until night brought coolness and an appetite.

After a few blocks of purposeless aimless the young writer noticed that just ahead of him was the trim figure and half-glimpsed profile of a strolling young girl.

Without paying any particular attention he noted the unconsciousness made him aware of the fact that while she seemed walking to no particular destination the woman was steadily ignoring men and youths who spoke to her and smiled invitingly as she passed. The workman in him made him note the situation and for a time he idly wandered, watching to observe the sort of prey such a woman would make.

For one of his calling the author

The coat of this "made in America" model is of black velvet bound in black braid. It is knee length and lined with black and white satin.

With the coat a skirt of black and white striped chevrons is worn. The skirt comes to the ankles and displays the Russian boots, the new fall and winter footwear. The most striking feature of the coat is its cross combination suggesting the work done by the noble band of women on the battlefields of Europe. The particular one shown in the photo is of white fur background. The cross is of dark fur.

Here was his opportunity. With O. Henry's precedent to justify him in making the experiment for the sake of local color, he would engage the girl in conversation and endeavor to draw her out.

Crane waited until his order came so that he might ask her to pass the salt. As she lifted her head so that he could see under the hat brim his story sense experienced a shock.

Instead of the powdered prettiness he expected, he saw the white, somewhat worn face of "The Other Kind." He forgot ladies do not speak to strange gentlemen and that Laura Jean Libbey and other woman's page authorities insist on proper introduction. He was just a human being and she was another.

"Tired?" he asked. Struggling with the suspicions that make every woman alone in a big

MRS. MARY E. FORDE DIES FROM HEART TROUBLE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Monroe, Wis., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Mary Ellen Forde, mother of Mrs. Roy Woodie, Jr., of this city, passed away after a lingering illness with chronic heart trouble, from which ailment she had suffered since she was 16 years of age, but for the past several weeks it had been more serious and she had been confined to the home. She had made her home in this city with her daughter for the past three years.

Mrs. Forde was 68 years of age and came to this country when a young girl, residing for one year in Winslow and also a year in southern Wisconsin. Later the family moved to Sioux Falls, S. D., being pioneer residents of that community, living for a time in a log cabin, and having the distinction of erecting the first frame house in Sioux Falls.

The deceased was married to Frank Forde at Sioux Falls, S. D., in 1888. Mrs. Forde passed away in December 1913. She is survived by three children, Mrs. Roy Woodie, Jr., of this city, Roy Forde, of San Francisco, and Joscoe Forde, of Sioux City, Ia. She also leaves a sister and six brothers.

TAPIOCA DISHES.

Tapioca Sherbet—Boil one-half cup of tapioca, one cup of sugar and a pint of water in the double boiler, stirring often for half an hour. Strain off the juice of two lemons and remove from the stove. When cool, stir into it briskly the well-beaten whites of two eggs. Serve with a soft custard.

Danish Pudding—Three cups of hot water, one-half cup tapioca, one spoon salt, one-half cup sugar and one small glass of currant jelly. Cook tapioca in the water for fifteen minutes. Add sugar, salt, and jelly. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened.

Maple Walnut Tapioca—Heat one pint milk. Stir in two tablespoons tapioca. Cook fifteen minutes, add the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, and a pinch of salt. Stir for three minutes and cool. Beat two-thirds cup thick maple syrup and add to the tapioca. Add one cup walnut meats, broken fine. Serve with whipped cream and place whole meats over the top.

Golden Gruel—Put one-half cup of tapioca in a double boiler with one cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and one and one-half cups of hot water. Wash two cups of rhubarb, and add to the tapioca mixture. Cook until the rhubarb is tender. Mash with a silver fork and pour while hot into a large mold, or individual molds. Chill, turn out and serve with whipped cream.

THE TABLE.

Salmon Croquettes—Four good-sized potatoes boiled in salt water until thoroughly done. Mash thoroughly and one cup of salmon, one egg, pinch of salt and pepper. After being well mixed form in croquettes and fry in hot fat until a delicate brown. Serve with a light cream sauce.

Cherry Dainty—Mix: one-fourth pound sweet butter, the yolks of sugar, one-fourth pound almonds, and one piece of citron cut fine. To this add one-fourth pound black bread moistened in one-half cup fruit juice. After this is well mixed add two pounds black cherries left whole and the beaten whites of the six eggs. Put in one large pudding dish or cake pan well buttered and bake.

Neapolitan Blanc Manger—Dissolve a box of gelatin in enough cold water to cover. Take one quart rich milk, put on the stove and let come to a boil, then add gelatin, letting it cook until entirely dissolved; then add three-fourths cup granulated sugar, strain through a fine muslin, a cheese cloth into four molds. Take one tablespoon chocolate, melt over steam and stir into one portion, flavor with vanilla. Color another portion with any rice juice to make it a pink, using about one tablespoon juice. For a third add the greater part of one or two oranges (according to size and same of the juice. Fourth portion leave plain. Return each portion (except the white) to the stove and stir until very hot. When all are cold dip a mold in cold water, put in half of the white, next, half of the pink, then half a brown, and lastly half of yellow. Repeat layers in the same order until the mold is one layer is set before adding the next. Place the mold in icebox for several hours, then turn out and serve with whipped cream.

Near Angel Food—One cup granulated sugar, one cup flour, three teaspoons baking powder; sift together; four times. Add one cup scalding milk; stir together well. Take whites of two eggs, well beaten, and stir quickly the mixture. Bake in loaf forty-five minutes in moderate oven.

HOMEMADE MARSHMALLOWS Soak one envelope of the granulated gelatin in ten tablespoons cold water. Boil two cups granulated sugar in ten tablespoons water until it spins a thread; add the gelatin to syrup and let stand until partially cooled. Add a few grains of salt and one teaspoon vanilla; beat until it becomes white and thick.

Pour to a depth of about one inch in granite pans that have been dusted thickly with powdered sugar, and set in a cool place, cut into cubes and roll in powdered sugar.

These may be varied by adding chocolate or by substituting fruit juices for part of the water.

"By God, Kelly! I've had enough of your damned grouch. Either you'll do as I say, or I'll cave the side of your head in, and have done with it. I've had enough, do you hear? I reckon I'm just as interested in overhauling that cuss as you are. Now you obey my orders, or be quick about it; give me another line of back talk, you Irish bastard, and I'll blow the whole top of your head off! You're what? Joking! Well, let up on that kind, will you? I'm in no humor for it. Take three or four men, and ride over the ridge, back as far as the rock. The soldiers are going to halt here a minute."

Kelly and his little squad trotted past us, circling the end of the building, the remainder of the group of horsemen, evidently composed of Cowan's gang of outcasts, scattering along the roadside, with no semblance of military discipline. Raymond touched spur to his horse's flanks, and went trotting back down the road, as though intending to intercept the advancing column, which was not yet visible. Cowan looked after him with a sneer.

"The d—d dandy," he growled to a man just behind, gesturing with one hand. "I don't take orders from nuthin' like that. Would you, Jim?" "I should say not," responded the other, spitting into the road. "What ever got us tied up here with these Yankees, Anse, anyhow? I done thought as how we was fightin' against the blue-bellies a bit ago; an' now we're as thick as two peas. Did yer git yer price?"

Cowan laughed grimly. "That ain't no occasion fer yer ter worry, Jim," he confided, evidently willing the others close about should hear. "We ain't tied up with no Yanks, 'cept fer maybe a few hours. Hell! that war'n't nuthin' else ter do, but fer friendly. That was thirty or us runnin' kurbump inter that bunch of cavalrymen, with ther wagon train a-comin' a hundred yards away."

"We weren't in no shape fer ter fight about a hundred an' fifty sojers, I reckon, tho', we'd a had to if that young popinjay had been in command. He ain't got the sense of a dried louse. But Cap Fox, he rode out, an' we sorter talked it over. He don't feel yer blame kind toward me since our fracas t'other night, but he's a sojer, an' he knows what Ramsay wants. That's what I banked on, fer I knew the general had give his orders ter use every means possible ter git us ter help out the Yanks. So I just up an' told ther cap that we was out huntin' fer ther same teller he wus; ther my father had been killed, an' I reckoned the Reb spy did it, an' ther from now on we was goin' fer ter fight on ther side. I don't reckon as how he believed much of what I sed, but all ther same, he had ter pretend he did, an' let us go 'long without no fightin'. So he done sent us on ahead, an' sent ther young snip along fer ter watch me. That's the how it happened."

"I see, an' t'ermorrer we leaves them, t'oldin' the bag—Hullo, Anse! look ther—It's Kelly comin' back, an', by jinks! he's leadin' two hosses."

Anse swung down to the ground, and ran his hands over the animals, fingering the equipment.

"Didn't the lieutenant say ther the spy an' the gurl got off on horses hitched by the hotel?"

"I didn't hear tell."

"Well, I did; anyhow they wusn't army horses they took. By God! I believe they're hidin' now in that church. Here, you Kelly," a new, exultant tone in his voice, "scatter your men out around ther whol' buildin'; we've treed our game, I reckon."

The guerrillas came forward on foot, running, and scrambling up the incline, but inclined to keep well back from the silent church. Jim was clattering down the pike, the clang of his horse's hoofs dying away in the distance. Harwood dropped his gripping hand from on my shoulder, and stepped back from before the window.

"Sergeant."

"Here, sir," and Wharton moved slightly in the darkness, so as to signify his whereabouts."

"You attended to the door?"

"Yes, sir; we found an old iron bar to fit across; they'll have to crush in the wood to get through."

"Let Johnson and McIvaine join me here; what is the name of that lad I was going to recommend for corporal?"

"O'Hare, sir; Jacob O'Hare."

"Put him in command of the south side, and you take the north; place benches to stand on under the windows, but keep your men down until you get the word. There is to be no firing until I give the order. Tell them they have got to fight for their lives. You understand?"

"Yes, sir; we'll do that, sir."

"Then get to your stations. Now, Wyatt, you command at the other end; there are two windows and a door. Here, take this gun and belt; I can get another." He stopped, and drew in a quick breath, glancing out again through the window.

"Friend Cowan—if that be his name—seems to be waiting for the military to come up," he commented mockingly. "Prefers to let the Yanks pull his chestnuts out of the fire. Perhaps he has known you a long while—hey, Wyatt?"

"The acquaintance has been rather brief, but warm."

"No doubt; well, I'll help make it warmer presently."

"Fair cousin, I do not know where to hide you in safety. This is going to be a real fight, or I am greatly mistaken, and bullets fly wild through the dark."

"If it is left to me," she said quietly, "I prefer to go with Tom Wyatt."

"But you do not understand. I broke in hastily, my pulses throbbing at her unexpected decision. "They may attack—"

"Oh, yes, the lady does, Wyatt," chuckled the lieutenant, his reckless good nature in no wise lost by the desperation of our position. "She is a Harwood, that's all. Hullo! here comes the cavalry! Now, men, to your posts—and stand up to the music."

"I caught her hand in mine."

"You—you mean that, Noreen?"

"Yes; do not refuse. I am not afraid," she implored. "Take me with you."

We came to the platform, and felt our way up the steps. It was darker here, yet my eyes, accustomed to the gloom, caught glimpse of crouching figures beyond the pulpit. Outside, sounding some distance away, Kelly's sharp, penetrating voice shouted an order, accompanied by an oath. One of the kneeling figures rose slowly until his eyes were even with the window sill.

"Men," I said quietly, barely loud enough to reach their ears. "I am a sergeant in the Staunton horse artillery. Your lieutenant has just assigned me to take command at this end of the church. How many are there of you?"

"Ten, sir," answered the one nearest, after a pause, turning his head slightly. "Three at each window, and four at the door."

"You have a prisoner, I understand."

He gave a muffled sound, as though stifling an incipient laugh.

"Nuthin' ter worry 'bout; he's lyin' over ther in the corner with Jack Gold-guardin' of him. I reckon the cuss likes prayin' better nor fightin' any day o' ther week."

"All right," I dropped my voice to a whisper. "Noreen, it will give us an extra fighting man if you will keep an eye on Nichols, and we'll need them all. I shall be less a coward if I believe you out of danger."

"A coward—you! Yes, of course, I will go."

I stepped across the platform, holding her arm.

"Gold, the lady will watch the prisoner; you join the others at the door."

He moved off, evidently glad enough to be relieved, and I stood erect where I could gaze out through the nearby window into the moonlight night without. I had a moment in which to think, to gather my scattered wits together, to face the situation. Behind me the tramp of approaching horsemen sounded along the pike, the gruff tone of an occasional voice, the clang of accoutrements. Then this noise ceased, as the head of the cavalry column came up to where Cowan and his men waited. I could barely make out the murmur of voices in explanation, muffled by the sound of approaching wheels, signifying the slower advance of the guarded wagons. I heard no orders given, yet the moonlight revealed more numerous figures in the line stretching across the open space.

"That's sojers out ther now, sir," whispered the man next the window, fingering his gun nervously. "A slew of 'em. Do yer know how many they got?"

"Only to guess at it—a couple of hundred altogether, I should say—enough to make it interesting."

I leaned forward, attracted by the sight of two figures standing together in the full gleam of the moon—Cowan and Raymond. So they were to command the rear attack, while Fox and the infantryman remained out in front.

"Have you counted the fellows out there?" I asked.

"Bout fifty, near as I kin make out; they're movin' round some, an' the light is damned bad."

"Then the main body is still in front, and that is where the fight will likely begin. Pass the word no firing until you get the order."

I stepped back, whispering a word to Noreen as I passed, and took place beside the pulpit, where I could see and hear something of what was about to transpire.

CHAPTER XXV.

We Drive Them.

It was silent enough within—not a movement, not a sound. Outside there was scarcely any more noise audible—the occasional pawing of a horse, a distant thud of feet where some infantrymen were being hurried into position, and now and then an indistinct voice. The caution shown, the force displayed about the church, surprised me. Surely no such effort would be made merely because of a vague suspicion that a man and girl might be hidden within. The leaders all knew that I was not likely to surrender without a fight, and that I was armed, yet this could hardly account for such preparation.

Could it be they really had a faint glimmer of the truth—that they realized the possibility of a Confederate raiding party in the neighborhood? They had shot Harwood's picket, and knew him to be a southern cavalryman from the uniform he wore. This might account for the display of force with which they invested the church before demanding admission. No doubt the heavy log walls looked formidable and mysterious in the moonlight. But, if they really suspected a garriotte within, why should their line be thus extended, within easy musket shot of the windows? The conclusion I arrived at was that Fox made this open display of force in the hope of avoiding bloodshed. He desired to capture instead of kill, and wished above all else to protect Noreen from danger. If we were alone within the church, escape was clearly impossible, and the probability strong that no resistance would be attempted.

The silence, the long wait, got upon my nerves. I could see little, and the few sounds reaching my ears conveyed no information of value. What were those fellows doing? What could cause their delay? The soldier behind me was humming softly; a foot scraped on the floor to the right; I caught the soft swish of Noreen's skirt as she changed position; the moonbeams glimmered on a lifted rifle barrel, there was all about a suppressed sound of breathing. Good Lord! would they never move! What could they possibly be doing out there?

A half dozen blows rang sharp on the wood of the outer door. Not a sound answered from within, although I could feel the men straighten up and sense the sharp intake of breath. Again the blows crashed, as if struck by the butt of a musket.

"Open up in there!" roared a voice, so muffled as to have no familiar sound, "or we'll break down the door. Come, Mr. Spy, we's got you trapped."

"Sergeant Wyatt, the lieutenant wants yer," the whispered words swept down the line of waiting men, and I hurried forward. Harwood was in the dark vestibule close beside the big door.

"That you, Wyatt?" he asked, uncertain as to my identity. "They are after you, and have no idea anyone else is here. You answer, and warn them what they're up against. I don't mind a fight, but am hardly ready to commit murder."

"Do you hear me in there, Wyatt?" the gruff voice without called. "This is your last chance; come, don't be a fool. We know you are there, and there couldn't a rat get out and not be seen."

"Who are you?" I asked. "Is Captain Fox there?"

"Yes—here, Fox; the fellow wants to talk with you."

There was a sound of movement without, the murmur of a word or two spoken in subdued tones; then Fox's voice raised to carry through the intervening wood.

"Sorry this happens to be my job, Wyatt," he said. "For Miss Harwood's sake I hope you will not attempt to fight; we've got a total force out here of over two hundred men."

"So I see," I answered coolly, including Cowan and my old friend, the lieutenant. Quite a compliment to send half a regiment after one man."

"Our having such a force is largely accident," he responded somewhat stiffly. "But that is neither here nor there; your escape is impossible."

"I am not considering escape," and I spoke loud enough to be heard clearly. "This is going to be a fight, Captain Fox—a real fight."

"A fight! What, you alone?"

"Oh, no; there are men enough in this church to make it quite interesting. That is why I warn you—we are soldiers, not murderers."

"What, you think that bluff will work?"

"Captain Fox," broke in Harwood bluntly, his voice nervously sharp, "I command Troop C, Third Kentucky cavalry. This is no bluff, sir. I give you fifteen minutes to withdraw your men; at the expiration of that time we open fire."

The surprise, the shock of this unexpected development and threat was plainly evident. I heard Fox step back from the door and speak earnestly to someone; Moran swore savagely.

"What force have you?" he roared, the insane question causing Harwood to laugh outright.

"Come and find out," he answered mockingly. "Better go back to the other end now, sergeant," he added in lower voice, and gripped my hand. "The ball is about to open. Where is my lady cousin?"

"I put her on guard over the prisoner. She will be out of range there, and have something to do."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

A public school teacher once put this question to her pupils:

"Which would you rather have—three bags with two apples in each bag, or two bags with three apples in each bag?"

"Three bags with two apples in each bag," was the surprising answer.

"Do you hear me in there, Wyatt?" the gruff voice without called. "This is your last chance; come, don't be a fool. We know you are there, and there couldn't a rat get out and not be seen."

"Who are you?" I asked. "Is Captain Fox there?"

The surprise, the shock of this unexpected development and threat was plainly evident. I heard Fox step back from the door and speak earnestly to someone; Moran swore savagely.

"What force have you?" he roared, the insane question causing Harwood to laugh outright.

"Come and find out," he answered mockingly. "Better go back to the other end now, sergeant," he added in lower voice, and gripped my hand. "The ball is about to open. Where is my lady cousin?"

"I put her on guard over the prisoner. She will be out of range there, and have something to do."

"Indeed!" said Goldmark. "Yes," continued de Pachman, "they will decorate it with a tablet."

"And what do you suppose they will say on the tablet?" asked the composer, eagerly.

"To Let," replied de Pachman.

"What is your fee for legal advice?" inquired the prospective client.

"That depends," replied the lawyer. "If you merely want me to tell you what the law allows you to do, I'll charge you five dollars, but if you want to find out how you can do what the law forbids, and get away with it, my fee is from one hundred dollars up."

PAPER PULP OF SUGAR CANE

One of the Greatest Problems of Mercantile World Solved by Recent Discoveries in Trinidad.

One of the greatest problems that are brought before the mercantile world for consideration as a result of the rapid decrease in the timber supply is the discovery of a fitting substitute for wood pulp in the manufacture of paper. A short time ago we published a report of the French system of making paper pulp from vines. The latest suggestion, however, is the utilization of sugar cane, and as far as it has been tested it has appeared in the light of a genuine solution.

The planters in Trinidad have found that they can add enormously to their yearly profits by raising their cane and treating it with the specific object of turning it into paper, with the manufacture of sugar as a mere side issue. The process which they have now adopted makes it possible to use all the fiber of the cane for paper and at the same time to get more sugar from it than by any of the old methods. The United States consul at Santiago moreover reports that the manufacture of paper from the cane is exciting considerable interest and some investment in all the sugar country and an American company has installed special machinery at Preston on Tripe bay.

The machinery will separate the pulp from the fiber. The water is eliminated and the pulp and fiber dried with all the elements of sugar still in them. The pulp and fiber are handled separately and the sugar extracted so that the fiber is not broken. High grade paper can be made from the fiber and from the pulp residue a coarser product is turned out which has a commercial value, while the quality of the sugar is in no wise affected.

BIG AID TO WEATHER BUREAU

For Dissemination of Weather Forecasts Telephone Have Played Important Part.

Telephones are handmaids to the weather bureau. Diligent efforts have been made on the part of the bureau to increase the distribution of weather forecasts, and the principal part of this work has been directed toward the dissemination of forecasts through the medium of the telephone companies, and they have responded almost unanimously to the invitation to cooperate for the benefit of their subscribers. During the year several states of the middle west and on the Pacific slope were canvassed, and as a result a large number of telephone companies in those states are now cooperating with the bureau in this important work.

One of the largest telephone companies operating in the southern states, which has heretofore declined to take up the work of distribution, has fallen into line, and is now giving its subscribers the benefit of the daily forecasts through a large number of exchanges, particularly in Mississippi and Tennessee. In the middle west the telephone is largely used for transmitting forecasts, and the weather information is much appreciated. The officials of the companies state that the number of calls that come into "central" daily for weather reports is surprising. They say that it is an advantage to them to have the opportunity of distributing the information free, as this aids in securing more subscribers. Some officials are enthusiastic in their commendation.

MULCHES FOR SMALL FRUIT

Sufficient Moisture Can Only Be Secured by Mellow Top Soil—Swamp Grass is Excellent.

The presence of sufficient moisture to provide for the growth and development of plant and fruit can only be secured by a deep fertile soil, with a fine, mellow top soil to prevent loss of moisture. Expert growers now mulch their beds with swamp grass, straw or leaves. Grass from the salt meadows is considered the best material to use; this is put on about six inches in thickness. The grass soon packs down, keeping the soil cool and moist. Irrigation of blackberries has been found better than mulching at the New Jersey experiment station.

The plots that were irrigated bore heavily, the fruit being large and of good flavor. The wild blackberry and raspberry that produces the largest and sweetest flavored fruit is nearly always found growing in a fence corner, the roots being mulched with a quantity of dead grass and leaves. The wild fox grape is found growing in the same kind of soil and under like conditions. Freshly-cut grass, weeds, coarse manure and rotted straw may be used. Give shallow cultivation, so as not to cut the roots; then spread on the mulch; the entire ground around the plants and between the rows should be covered. Gooseberries and currant bushes should be dusted every morning with air-slacked lime to prevent the sheep from eating the leaves.

Apparatus Uproots a Tree
Machine Invented That Reduces Operation of Transplanting to Mere Turn of Crank.

The transplanting of trees that have acquired any sort of growth is a tedious operation when they have to be dug up, not to speak of the labor of transporting them. A Colorado man has invented a machine for this purpose which reduces the whole operation to the mere turning of a crank. A vehicle has two bars rising from its rear axle and converging at the top, where they meet a single bar from the front axle. A chain is suspended from near their point of intersection and is adapted to be fastened around the base of the tree, just above the ground. The turning of a crank operates a multiple gearing, which drags on the chain and literally pulls the tree out by the root if it is not too old and too large to be removed in this way. The tree is then held suspended while the vehicle is moved to the place where it is to be replanted, the whole operation taking a very short time compared to the old method.

Severe Pruning for Trees.
It is impossible to transplant a tree without losing from one-half to two-thirds of its feeding roots, hence at this time, if at no other, the trees should receive a severe top pruning.

Cheer up, O automobilist, nor "cuss" the weather man. Because you find yourself in such a plight. We think a little lying would be a better plan. For he's hiding near you, laughing at the sight.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Mr. Wilson of the Times has been engaged in taking the school census of this city for the past week or ten days. He has finished the West side and we believe has taken somewhere near 3,800 names.

Look out for the pad-footed meadow. One of them followed a gentleman in this city last night several blocks, and at the opportune moment undertook to extort his purse. He was seized by the collar and the cutthroat took to his heels.

Yesterday was the warmest and most disagreeable day of the season. It was cloudy and the thermometer did not indicate as much heat by four degrees as it had on three other days during the summer, but the air was intensely oppressive. Coats were taken off, paper collars were melted down, handkerchiefs were drenched in perspiration, and everybody felt out of sorts. It was the warmest introduction ever September received.
